Pest Management Solutions for Long Term Care

Pests Can Damage Your Reputation

Pest sightings can adversely affect operational efficiency, health inspection readiness, food safety and your brand. The appearance of your facility is critical to long-term patient care. In fact, appearance is one of the most important factors considered by families when choosing a long-term care facility.¹ You only have one chance to make a first impression – don't let pests make your operation look dirty and unsafe.

UNDERSTANDING ANT BEHAVIOR

- Certain species may bite and sting residents
- Ants may invade buildings in search of food, water, and shelter
- Ants may nest underground and beneath rocks, wood piles and trees, baseboards and walls outside of your facility

Ants

Ants are associated with unsanitary environments and can harm residents' health

Bed Bugs

It only takes one bed bug incident to hurt your reputation

UNDERSTANDING BED BUG BEHAVIOR

- Bed bugs are skilled hitchhikers – they are easily carried from place to place
- They feed at night and stay hidden during the day
- Bed bugs hide in secluded places for up to 10 days after feeding
- They can survive up to 10 months without a feeding

BIOLOGY

Bed bugs can live for up to a year and may lay over 500 eggs in a lifetime. These public health pests are a quarter-inch long and look similar to apple seeds.
